gold in recent years. To this increased production he also gave the credit for the from industrial depression during the past three years. At the same time he expressed the belief that in this very increase there was a possible future disturbance of values. Should the present rate of production continue he believed the volume of money in the world would be doubled in twenty years, with the result that prices of many commodities would be greatly in-creased—possibly doubled. While the in-crease in the supply of money would tend to advance the price of real property, however, the price of an obligation repayable in money would not advance. Thus all persens having a fixed income, persons receiv-ing a fixed salary or wage earners generally would be at a disadvantage, for their incomes would not tend to increase as probably as the purchasing power of their incomes decreased.

He believed, however, that the theory of the classical economists that with the doubling of the gold stock would come a dou-bling of prices would not hold entirely

Such a result, he thought, would be prevented by the exploitation of virgin fields of development, such as followed the dis-covery of great quantities of gold in Mexico, Peru, California and Australia, and that the next few years would witness the expansion of the field of commercial enter-prise into many new places.

He declared the outlook at the present time to be very bright, but gave warning that most assuredly there were dangers lurking in the situation.

"Should a stock market speculation start from the present high level of prices in the face of the extraordinary demand for capital and money which crops and business alike are making," said he, "the result might easily be temporary disaster. Al-though there may be many favorable features to the outlook, it is no time for prudence to be cast to the wind; no time for speculative commitments which would yield disaster if temporary reverses came; no time for laxness in any of the forms of ousiness prudence and conservatism."
At the conclusion of Mr. Vanderlip's address Mr. William B. Ridgely, controller of the currency, was introduced to make an address on the examination of banks.

Bank Examination.

Mr. Ridgely declared at the outset of his remarks that after four years of careful study he was convinced that no system of bank examination or supervision from the outside can absolutely prevent fraudulent bank failures. He also stated that he was equally convinced that careful and efficient work on the part of the examiner, aided and abetted by co-operation of the bank boards throughout the country, can make failure almost impossible. No outside failure almost impossible. No outside supervision can supply brains and honesty for a bank or take the place of either when it is lacking. The speaker then sketched the causes of bank failures, and declared that it is generally when a bad man or a bad crowd gets possession of a bank that it comes to grief. The work of the examiner was then gone over carefully to show what trials he has, and of how little good his work can be without the hearty support of the bank officers. He referred to the duties of the directors and the executive work of the bank officers, and declared that no bank official had reason to fear the board of directors if he was doing his work properly.

The responsibility for the bank management rests with the directors, he said. By accepting a place on a bank board and tak-ing the oath of office a man accepts this re-sponsibility. He is under every moral and legal obligation to perform his duty fully.

"It is certainly not asking too much of men who accept such trusts," declared the controller, "that they simply do their plain duty and obey the laws.
"This would seem to be a particularly opportune time for a vigorous self-searching among the directors of the banks of the country, as well as all other men who are in places of financial trust and responsi-

"Recent disclosures of the most disgraceful betrayal of trusts by men in the highest position and the use of these very positions for private gain at the expense of those whom it was their sacred duty to protect have put the American financier on trial before the country and the world. only those who usually are interested in such matters, but all the people of the country, are asking: 'If these men are not to be trusted, who is?' If this much is true, how much more must there not be?' It is only a natural inquiry whether in the con-test for wealth and power the American financial conscience has become deadened and the old ideals of honor and truth have given way to a newer code.
"It is a shame, a disgrace, a national misfortune, that such things could have happened when and where they did, but It is a great good fortune that through a quarrel over the spoils the knavery has been discovered. Unknown, or only suspected, such things are the greatest danger, but their discovery and exposure makes it pos sible to reform them. The more complete the exposure, the more certain the reform. A director or an officer of any bank, no matter how small or obscure, holds the some relation to his trust that these men There is probably not a man here, certainly no member of the American Bankers' As sociation, who is not the guardian of some trust reposed in him by those who thus depend on his honor and fidelity. We are all responsible in some degree. It is not enough that we cry out for the punishment of those who have been caught in the act. Our duty lies in the faithful discharge of the obligations resting upon us. The upholding of the reputation and character of the banking institutions of the country is in our care and depends on each man do-when Mr. Ridgely had finished Secretary Branche announced the organization of the Bankers' Publicity Association. The delegates of the State Bankers' Association an-nounced that meetings would be held to nominate state vice presidents at various parts of the theater.

The meeting adjourned at 1:30 o'clock. At Work in Earnest.

The visiting bankers went to work in earnest today, and what with the sessions of the association at the National Theater and the various forms of entertainment arranged for them, the next three days will be very busy. If there is anything the local committee has left undone for the comfort and convenience, as well as the entertain-ment of their guests, they have failed to discover any evidences thereof. If any visit-ing banker wants anything he has not received the members of the local committee are desirous of knowing what it is so they can supply the want. The crowd at local and national headquarters yesterday was enormous. During the morning and after-noon it was almost impossible to get around in the big room on the tenth floor of the New Willard that has been turned over to the bankers and their clerks. The telegraph instruments were ticking all day, and the New York Evening Post distributed bulletins of financial news at fifteen-minute in-tervals throughout the day. At the local committee headquarters the corps of young men of the various committees put in strenuous day. At least a dozen of them were hustling from early in the morning until late last evening supplying the vist-tors with necessary information and giving out tickets for the various entertainments. The demand for tickets has been enormous. The supply for some of the events was exhausted before noon. A third exhibition drill at Fort Myer, to be given Saturday, has been arranged for the benefit of such of the visitors as were unable to secure tickets for the drills tomorrow and Friday.

Executive Council.

A meeting of the executive council was held yesterday afternoon at the New Willard during the course of which matters affeeting the national organization were discussed. The recommendations of the council will be presented to the convention today. It is understood that during this meeting the matter of an amendment to the national banking law permitting the loaning of money on real estate to the extent of 20 per cent of the capital stock of the bank, was discussed. There is a prohibition against this now. A recommendation will also be made, it is understood, to appoint a committee to frame a report on currency legislation needed. If this committee is authorized it will not report until the next Clearing house representatives from every section of the country attended a conference held at the New Willard yesterday on, during the course of which matters of interest to the clearing houses were discussed. The clearing houses were discussed. The clearing house men want to do away with the practice of carrying the exchange on country bank checks without charge. A committee, consisting of W. T.

appointed to bring the matter to the attention of the bankers' association. W. T. Fenton, vice president of the National Bank of the Republic of Chicago was elected president of the association, and C. E. Farnsworth of the Union National Bank of Detroit was chosen secretary.

Those present during the meeting were: Charles E. Ruggles, George M. Reynolds and J. C. Neely, Boston; August Blum, Charles H. Kellogg, Caspar H. Rowe, George Guchengerger and Mr. Fenton, Chicago; George H. Bohrer and C. A. Oaine, Cincinnati; E. R. Fancher, Cleveland; A. E. Wing and Mr. Farnsworth, Detroit; George E. Pearsall, Des Moines; Henry Eitel and Oscar F. Frenzel, Indianapolis; James K. Isley, George W. Strohmeyer and Grant Fitch, Milwaukee; Edward E. Clark, H. A. Hunt and George W. Lamphear, Providence; Henry C. Brewster, Rochester; William Hill and G. W. Garrells, St. Louis, and A. T. Brice, Washington.

The secretaries of the state bank associations met in conference at the New Willard yesterday afternoon also. The secretaries present decided to hold another meet-lard yesterday afternoon also. The secretaries present decided to hold another meeting later in the year, probably at Chicago. The following officers were elected for the nsuing year: Major S. B. Rankin, Ohio, president; L. B. Hillier, Georgia, first vice president; L. O. Broussard, Louisiana, second vice president; Broussard, Louisiana, second vice president; Free E. Farnsworth, Detroit, secretary.

Those who attended the meeting were Joseph Chapman, jr., Minnesota; D. S. Kloss, Pennsylvania; Andrew Smith, Indiana; E.
O. Eldredge, New York; Mr. Henry, assistant secretary, New York; J. E. Platt, South Dakota; Major Rankin, Ohio; Charles E., Ruggles, Massachusetts; Col. Farnsworth,
Michigan; W. W. Waine, assistant secretary, Michigan; John R. Gower, New York;
W. Field, New Jersey, and T. P. Judson, Illinois.

NOTES AND INCIDENTS OF THE BIG CONVENTION.

which is apparent in a survey of the great number of delegates to the convention of the American Bankers' Association, in session in this city, it is their jovial and light-hearted appearance. The reason assigned is the prosperous condition of the sections of the country from which they come, and they represent practically every part of the United States. They will tell you that money is plentiful and the banking business is flourishing, wherever you Probably no other section of the country s better represented for its size than Long Island, N. Y. It is estimated roughly that nearly forty delegates from there are in the Bank of Long Island, which has branches in many of the towns, and Richard H. Swartout, a New York banker, were discussing money conditions this morning.

"The banks have more money than they know what to do with in many parts of the country," said Mr. Smith. "Highest grade money can be had in New York now at figures ranging from 4% per cent to 5½ per cent, and indications are that it will be still easier with the turn of the year. There is going to be plenty of money for banker, merchant and manufacturer this winter.

One of the most prominent figures seen at the New Willard Hotel is Henry Eitel, vice president of the Indiana National Bank of ndianapolis. He is rated as a conservative banker and is considered the best man on credits in the state. Mr. Volney, who ac-companies Mr. Eitel, has been in the banking business in the same city for fifty years, having started in as a small boy. He is now the largest owner of bank stock and real estate in that city.

What Do You Want

The lobby of the New Willard, where the

Some New Yorkers. Another prominent delegate to the convention is Leo H. McCall, son of the president of the New York Life Insurance Company. The son is not an officer in the insurance company, but of the Citizens' Cen-

Price, cashier of the First National Bank of Luray. These gentlemen grow enthusiastic when speaking of the flourishing condition of business in "the valley."

"Why," said Mr. Fuller to a Star reporter, "three and one-half years ago our bank had only $500,000 in deposits, and today we have $2,000,000.
